The Magic of the Words

There are a great many number of principles to consider when maximising vocabulary learning: the need to give it deliberate attention; the need to show how words do not exist in isolation, but in partnerships and the need for learners to work out meaning for themselves and to take ownership of newly learnt vocabulary. In this session we'll explore how National Geographic Learning's Close-up series exploits these different principles to help speed up vocabulary learning and develop greater language awareness.

Maximising Student Talk Time

We often hear about the balance of STT vs TTT being key to success in the classroom and certainly for a student centred, communicative learning environment there needs to be a substantial amount of STT. This is all the more important given that students often have only two or three lessons a week. Therefore, it's imperative that students get as many opportunities to speak as possible. However, maximising STT is not just maximising the amount, but also the quality of the STT in terms of its usefulness and productiveness. In session we'll look at what balance we should be aiming for, what constitutes quality STT and how we can achieve this using National Geographic Learning's Outcomes series.

The talk will be delivered by Alex Warren, a teacher, teacher trainer with over 13 years' experience of working in ELT, academic director and a journalist. Travelling to countries throughout Europe, Africa and the Middle East, Alex enjoys working with innovative materials and presenting on a wide range of ELT-related topics of National Geographic Learning.

The seminar is held in Burgas on Wednesday, November 15th, 2017 at -Business Incubator,
Al.Batenberg Str. 28
